

Sortland kulturskole is a public noncompulsory school - est. 1977 - and is subject to the Education Act of 2024 (1997), Section 26.

Thus – even if the school is open to everyone – the priority is children and youths up to the end of their teens.

The school do not request any prior knowledge, nor do we arrange any kind of entrance exam for attending the school.

The curriculum includes dance, drama, fine art and a variety of instrumental and vocal activities.

Applications are made online, and we accept applications continuously. But for the main admission, applications must be submitted by June 1st.

There is a tuition fee which is billed once per term, NOK 1375 (2025) each time for most activities.
